

A Debate Becomes a Brawl as Turkey's Parliament Votes to Rein In Courts

Thesis: Although some may think passing the new bill is a good idea, the judicial system in Turkey disagrees because it actually created a crisis and has brought corruption on the fore-front for both sides.

- President Recep Tayyip Erdoğan is considered to be a dictator
- He wants Power over the Judiciary
- he gets the majority of the vote
- he acts as if he has more Power than the president

- Judiciary system trying to prove Erdoğan is horrible for the country
- leaked unknown info online
- damaged the government's case
